C. W. Mead Shows Textile Design Used by Megolithic People Which Is Counterpart of Persian.

persons from despoiling autiquities will be asked by the present congress of Americanists if the resolutions sub-mitted yesterday at the opening meeting are adopted. Another resolution calls for the promotion of anthropological re-search in the American republics. Prob-ably both will carry if the remarks heard about the halls of the National Museur yesterday are an indication.

The program yesterday began with a general meeting in the large auditorium of the museum, at which President John W. Foster delivered his address of wel come, followed by the address of Dr. Walcott, of the Smithsonian Institution. Brief responses were made on behalf of the various countries represented by Dr Juan Ambrosetti, of Argentina; M. Al-phonse Gagnon, of Canada; Prof. Luis Montane, of Cuba; Miss Adele C. Breton, of England, and Alexander C. Vouros, of Greece. Then, with Dr. Ambrosetti in the chair, the reading of the scientific papers began.

Textile designs used by the people who preceded the Incas in western South America were discussed by Charles W. Mead, of the American Museum of Natural History. He showed stereopti-con slides of the four general motives. the human figure, the bird, the fish, and the puma. His paper dealt particularly with the puma, or cat design of the so-called Megolithic people.

One remarkable coincidence was a cat eyes, nose and mouth design, the exact counterpart of one used in the lifteenth century in Persia by the makers of the Persian goat-hair rogs.

"Since it is not probable that any one will claim a contact of the ancient Peru-vian weavers with those of Persia," said Mr. Mead. "we must call this an example of the influence of technique upo

Supreme Court to recover $80.50. The suit is brought against Stephen E. Barton's ancillary executor of Miss Barton's will, which was probated in Massachusetts.

According to the bill of particulars filed by Attorneys John Ridout and J. A. Mordarity, the amount claimed is for services from March 3, 1912, to April 14. 1913, for which $500 is asked; for services rendered at the D. A. R. convention in New York for the five days between March 10 and 14, 1922, for which $400 is claimed; and for railroad fare and expenses in Washington, amounting to $50.55. Miss Kane says she was paid but $150 on account.
